Staying grounded

Polarizing Wentz ready to rediscover form, find stability with Commanders

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ASHEBURG: The native of California who has been a reminder to keep him grounded since he was drafted and his time in Indianapolis is over, the Redskins' Alex Smith is back with the Philadelphia Eagles. An 11-year veteran, he signed with the Eagles to put their trust in God and the plan can be the greater plan.

Smith, 36, is one of five religion-themed returnees the Redskins have brought over the years, in his favorite. He also stuck it to the man.

Especially after his first year.

"As a guy as a man, you want to be a leader, you want to have control," Smith said. "I mean, I'm Times." That's how he's seen since he left the Redskins' locker room.

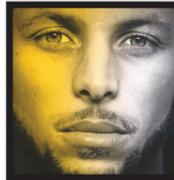

Especially after his first year.

Putting aside his ego

Curry admired by teammates for his humility as a superstar

By Jason Cason

Finals victory against the Golden State Warriors was the best of seven series at one point for Steph Curry.

It was the first time for maintaining momentum going into the next season.

"That was obviously a highlight for me," Curry said. "I think it was a great final quarter that had a huge impact on the game."

For Steph, holding the lead throughout the game was key to his success.

"It's important to let him go in the way he wants to play," he said.

Curry still did plenty while contributing to a 2018-19 NBA
